OCTOBER 2023

IN THE "SPIRIT" OF HALLOWEEN

Westchester Township History Museum staff are often asked if the Brown Mansion is haunted. While none of the current staff have had any ghostly encounters at the Museum, there are reasons to believe that it might be haunted.

Several people who lived or visited here as children claimed to see a ghost sitting on the stairs. The children called the ghost "Ebbie," short for Ebenezer, but as far as we know, there was never anyone named Ebenezer who lived here.

We have also had several ghost hunters come through the Brown Mansion. Many of these groups have reported electronically recorded sounds that are interpreted to be spirit voices.

If it is haunted, who would be haunting it? It could be the spirits of the people who died here. George Brown, his wife, Charity, and their 19-year-old son, Charles, all died in the house and had their funerals in the parlor. This was common practice in Chesterton until the early 20th century.

When the Brown Mansion was built in 1885, ghost stories, séances, and mediums were popular throughout the U.S. But Halloween was not the time for such things. During the Victorian Era, Christmas was the most popular time to tell ghost stories (think about Charles Dickens's A Christmas Carol). The Chesterton Tribune even reported on several ghost sightings around the area in the 1890s.

It is possible that the Brown family may have told such stories or held séances in the house. We do not know. Despite ghost hunters' indications that there are spirits here, and former residents reported seeing seeing ghosts, if there are ghosts in the house, they leave us alone to do our work.

To learn more about the Brown Mansion's "ghosts," visit the Museum at 700 W. Porter Ave. The Museum is open Weds. 12 – 5 PM and the 2nd and 4th Saturday of the month, from 12 – 5 PM, or by appointment.

MAGAZINES OF INTEREST

Popular Mechanics* (Thomas print & digital)

Popular Mechanics helps the reader master the modern world, presenting the latest advances in science and technology. Learn how these advances will impact your home, your car, consumer electronics, computers, even your health. It's the magazine for people who have a passion to know how things work.

Wired* (Thomas print & digital)

Wired is the magazine for smart, intellectually curious people who need and want to know what's next. Whether it's technology, business, global politics, new media, arts and culture, design, or the best new products, Wired is there, on the front lines of the 21st Century.

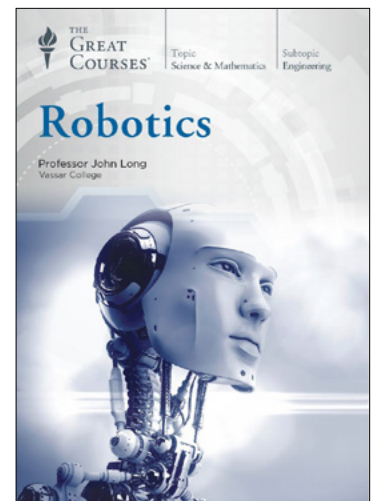

THE GREAT COURSES

Robotics* (DVD)

Ours is a world increasingly defined by the cutting-edge field of robotics. The future of human civilization depends on collaborative robotics: humans and machines working together. According to robotics expert and award-winning professor John Long of Vassar College, "Robots are what computers and self-propelled vehicles were to the 20th century: a technological revolution that impacts nearly every aspect of our lives, businesses, and security."

Yet for all their seen (and unseen) prevalence, robotics remains mysterious to most of us. How exactly do robots work? What does it take to build a robot that can, for a period of time, perform tasks and make decisions with little human input? How do we balance the technological benefits of robots with the potential risks they pose to pre-existing ways of life?

Professor Long will answer these and other questions as he takes an in-depth journey present in the 24 incredible lectures of Robotics. Using in-studio robot demonstrations, videos of other state-of-the-art robots, 3-D animations, and other amazing visual aids, Professor Long demystifies the world of robots and provides a comprehensive introduction to these intelligent machines. Whether you're looking to grasp the hard science of how robots work or simply curious about the implications of robots for society, consider this course your official passport to an astonishing new world and how robotics will continue to revolutionize our lives.
